

I am not in favor of eliminating element 1.

It is my belief that people will appreciate things that they have to work for more than they will appreciate things that are given to them with very little effort required.

Five words per minute is not that hard to learn.